HANDS AND FACES.

HOW THEY ARE MADE IN A LAR SWISS WATCH FACTORY.

es on Hands—The Wages Publ Both Mon and Women Are Excellent.

wa correspondent in writing of a visit to one of the famous watch namufactories of that city thus de-cribes some of the operations: Now, about the dialmaking process itself: First, the plain round of purest copper must be heated to a red heat in a furnace to burn off any adhering im-purity. Leaving the fire, it is plunged purity. Leaving the hit, in that way it into an acid bath, and in that way it mes so smooth that it may easily be rubbed into form with a small steel

The enamel, which comes from France and Switzerland and looks like great lumps of white porcelain, is first reduced to the finest of powders in a powerful crusher. Then it, too, is washed in acid, and finally it is washed again in many renewings of pure water. After this it is made into a sort of paste, which is applied in thin strata to both sides of the copper and then carefully put by to wait the complete evaporation of the water with which it was mixed. As soon as this has been accom plished the dial is placed in an intense iy hot gas oven, where the enamel be-comes perfectly fused and adheres firm-ly to the plate. This operation is re-peated, with a second and third application of the enamel, and then the dial is ready to receive the painting of the hours. As soon as this has been done it is again put in the oven, a most critical operation, because the fraction of second overmuch would spoil everything, and then, while yet warm, it is rubbed or redressed with a bit of charcoal and a small metal tool especially made for the purpose. It is this operation that gives the dial the beautiful smoothness, like that of a dainty bit of china. Before that most delicate operation, the piercing for the hands, which is done on an instrument furnished with diamonds fixed on steel, and sometimes even the steel itself, the dial goes to the automatic filer and is rendered absolutely perfect in shape. The painting of the hours is nearly all done by women and girls. Several women are also employed in the ennineling department. The wages paid both men and women are excellent. Some of the employees are time workers, the others work by the piece, many of the latter easily carning 300 francs a month. Naturally these are the most experienced workers, who have finished apprenticeships of at least three years.

In beginning the employees are given simple separate parts to do, but even then they may earn from 100 to 150 francs a month. The women who earn the highest wages, 200 francs, work also by the piece, polishing or rubbing off the second dial.

The firm was organized in 1885, and R. M FEARCE,

DENTIST—Nace 31 in Enchem & Lynds's new been connected with it from the beginning. There are 14 divisions of workmen and workwomen, each with a distinct branch of his or her own. Indeed a dial, before complete, passes through at least 20 pairs of hands. Besides the white or simple dials with the usual black figures, there are the colored dials.

DENTAL SUNGEONS—Morell & Lynds's point of the beginning. There are the colored dials black figures, there are the colored dials.

DENTAL SUNGEONS—Morell & Lynds's gray, a delicate rhade of green and black. There are also the white or colored dials, with figures in contrasting colors or in metals, as in Rachel Noven, Thomas E. Patterson, Edith Patterson, Ed all the chief employees of today have contrasting colors or in metals, as in ! the very latest fashion in decoration there is an artistic combination with golden dots. This firm sends dials to America by the hundreds of thousands annually, and its rate of supply to the largest Swiss houses is proportional.

The making of watch hands is one of the most fascinating adjuncts in the whole process of watch manufacturing. The chief Swiss handmaking firm has been in existence through three generations. As all its heads have been notably expert artisans and devoted workmen, it is little wonder that the hands now produced by this house have be-come celebrated. The process is so delicate that the workers must be literally undisturbed in their work, and the pieces are so minute that a rogue, should one enter, could easily carry off a large number unobserved; hence the business is conducted behind locked doors, and all outside communications are through closely barred windows. It is almost incredible, but here, too, a staff of designers is kept 'busy, for the hands in form as well as the dials in figures and ernamentation must keep pace with fash-ion's demands. The standard favorite designs, however, are the Louis XV. the flower-de-luce and the good old fash-ioned spade and open hands. The steel hands cost quite as much as the ordinary gold hands, because they are so much harder in the working.

The price of an ordinary pair of ands is, I believe, about 8 francs, but I have seen hands there initialed and studded with tiny diamonds that cost in the neighborhood of 35 or 40 francs. Every style and every workman has its and his own especially cut die with which the bands are stamped from the thin and very elastic and highly temperod sheet of steel or from the gold or silver of which they are to be formed. There is a wonderful machine in this shop that takes a bar of steel half an inch wide and liattens it again and again until it comes out vibrant, clas-tic, and of just the thickness desired for the hands. - Boston Herald.

A Public Spirited Woman Mrs. Matilda Gross MacConnell has

Mrs. Matilda Gross MacConnell has given the city of Pittsburg five squares of ground for a public park. She is the third woman in the city who has given land for park purposes; thus helping to remove from Pittsburg the stigma of being perhaps the only town in the country devoid of open squares, plazas or public lawas. Yet these public spirited women cannot vota.—Pittsburg Lecter.

It seems to have entirely escaped no-ice that it was Mr. Bayard, the new afterican embassador to London, who Asterican embassed to London, who insisted some years ago upon the recall of Lord Sackville, the then British minister to the United States. The incident has only to be mentioned to be remembered. That the British government should have sanctioned the appointment of Mr. Bayard under these circumstances that we are a forgiving stances proves that we are a forgiving race. Beyond, however, making some-what too lengthy speeches, Mr. Bayard has made himself a persona grata here. —London Truth.

The reast beef of old England, it appears from the report of a committee of the house of lords, is apt to be best when it is American raised.

The men in the Cancasian settlements in South Africa outnumber the women by 10 to 1, and spinsters are rare.
